

Family reunion with foreign spouse or children

If you are married or will get married to a foreign citizen (non EU) or if you are a parent of a child living in Germany, and plan to seek gainful employment in Germany (or to stay in Germany longer than 3 months) in order to live with your family, you have to obtain a residence permit in the form of a national (German) visa.

This will include a work permit.

It allows you to enter the other Schengen countries for a stay up to 90 days as a tourist.

The processing of visa applications for permanent stays takes up to 12 weeks.

As soon as the application with the required documents is complete, it will be forwarded to the local foreigners' office in Germany.

After approval of the application, the German Embassy issues a residence permit in the form of a visa for the first 90 days. A final residence permit is issued in Germany by the Foreigners Authority. Therefore, all holders of residence permits must register upon their first arrival.

 German language skills:

Applicants must prove basic German skills when applying for a visa.

The applicant must be able to communicate in German at least at a basic level. A certificate of successful completion of a German course at level A1 according to the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages serves as proof. In Norway only the Goethe Institute, as a member of the Association of Language Testers in Europe (ALTE), offers this certificate.

For information on language tests, please visit this webpage: www.goethe.de

Exception:

- If the applicant shows sufficient German language skills by the time of the visa application at the consulate, no further proof would be required.
- If the applicant is married to a citizen of the EU (other than Germany), German language skills are not required according to the FreizügG/EU

Other exceptions may apply. This can only be determined after reviewing ALL documents during your appointment.
